Damaraland Government
Director of Works

Introduction

Following the recommendations of the Odendaal Report, an ethnically segregated “Damaraland” (“Homeland” or Bantustan) was established in 1971. In 1977, a “Damara Representative Authority” headed by Justus ǁGaroëb was established in terms of the South African “Development of Self-government for Native Nations in South West Africa Act” (Act 54 of 1968). With the independence of Namibia, “Damaraland” was dissolved and its administrative functions taken over by organs of the Namibian government.

The records in this fonds concern mostly the construction and maintenance of schools. They obviously do not cover the entire period of existence of “Damaraland”. It has not yet been established when and how these records were transferred to the Archives.
